1. Introduction

Redress Scotland is an executive non-departmental public body and is responsible for making decisions on completed applications to Scotland's Redress Scheme.

This report, sharing information about the work of Redress Scotland, is part of a regular series. We are committed to sharing information about our work.

In this report, we share information about completed applications, types of applications, how long we take to make decisions, asking applicants for more information and levels of redress awards.

As our work develops, we expect to share more information about what we do and the decisions we have made. We will also continue to protect the confidentiality of individual applicants and their experiences, and we will continue to do this in all our publications.

2. How many applications has Redress Scotland received?

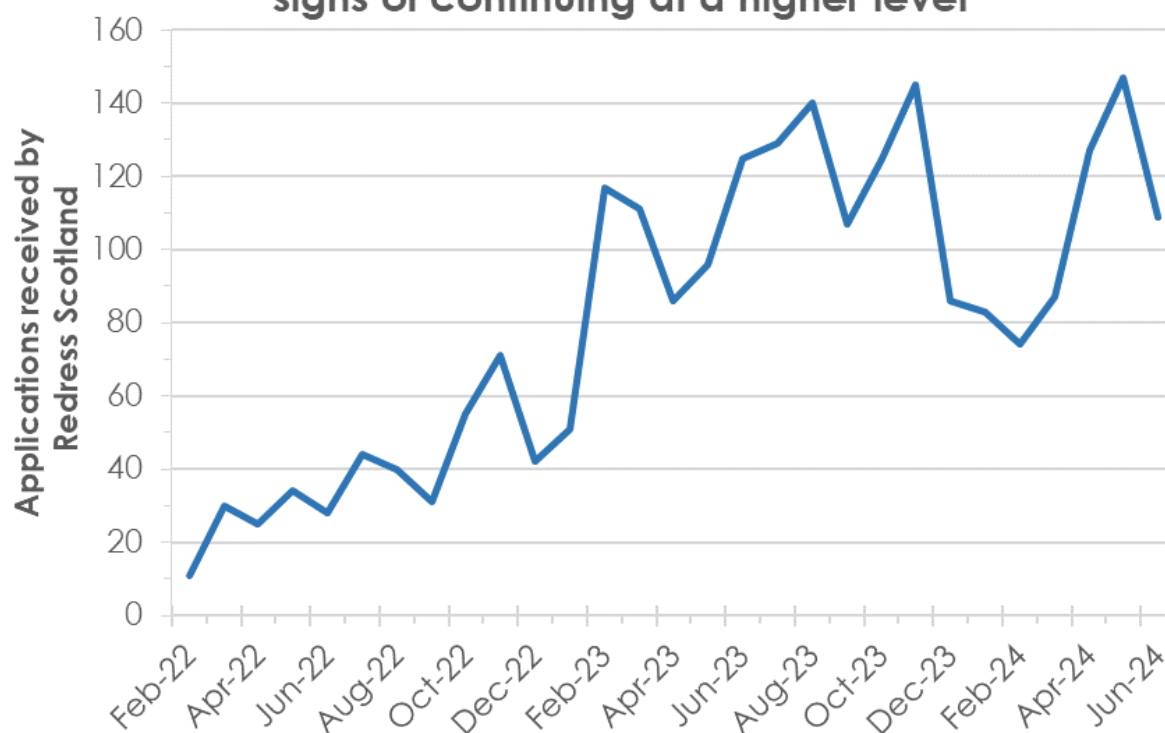

The Scottish Government supports applicants to complete their applications to Scotland's Redress Scheme. Each individual applicant decides when their application is complete and if they are ready to send their application to Redress Scotland.

Scotland's Redress Scheme opened on the 8 December 2021. Up to the 30 June 2024, Redress Scotland had received a total of 2,389 applications from the Scottish Government, 2,356 of which were directly related to redress applications. The monthly volume of applications received since June 2024 has returned to levels similar to those previously seen around September to November 2023, with levels consistently above 100 per month. There are indications from the Scottish Government that we will see even higher levels through 2024-25.

So far in financial year 2024-25 (from 1 April 2024 to 30 June 2024) Redress Scotland has received 384 applications (383 of which were directly related to redress applications). This is slightly higher than the average volume received per quarter in 2023-24 (around 323).

The following chart shows how many redress applications were received by Redress Scotland for each month since the scheme has been open. In general, the number of applications Redress Scotland have received from the Scottish Government has been increasing since the start of scheme although we have seen several peaks and troughs, as can be seen on the chart below. However, the long-term trend is one of increasing monthly applications received. The average over the last 12 months was 114 applications received and 8 of the last 12 months were in the top 10 months for applications received since the scheme opened.

Upto the end of June 2024, Redress Scotland had received 2,356 redress applications. Volumes received peaked at 147 in May 2024 and show signs of continuing at a higher level

3. What type of applications has Redress Scotland received?

Redress Scotland receives a range of different applications which panels make decisions on. These include:

- fixed redress payments;
- individually assessed payments;
- next of kin payments;
- nominated beneficiary payments;
- other applications related to eligibility for redress; and
- some aspects of legal fees and expenses.

The following diagram shows how many of each type of application had been received by Redress Scotland from when the scheme opened in December 2021 to the end of June 2024.

Over 60% of all applications received by Redress Scotland up to the end June 2024 were for Individually Assessed applications

4. How many applications has Redress Scotland made decisions on?

Most of the decisions that Redress Scotland has made, are for applications from individuals for redress payments. The following diagram shows the different types of applications Redress Scotland has made decisions on from when the scheme opened in December 2021 to the end of June 2024. During this period, Redress Scotland made decisions on 1,800 applications, 1,768 for redress and 32 related to Legal Fees and Expenses. The number of decisions made by Redress Scotland, in the first quarter of financial year 2024-25 was 258, slightly higher than the average number of decisions we made per quarter in 2023-24 (243).

Up to the end of June 2024, Redress Scotland's panels have made decisions on 1,800 applications, just under 60% of which were for Individually Assessed Applications

5. How long does Redress Scotland take to make a decision when they receive a completed application?

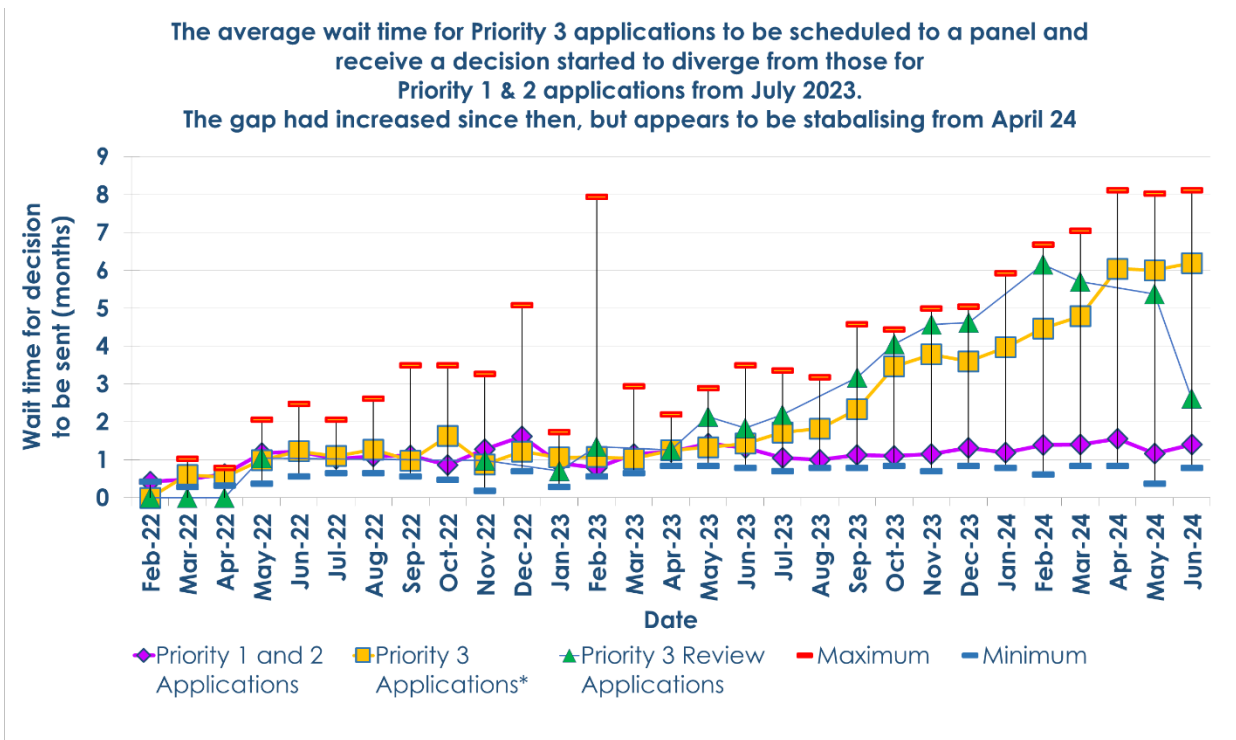

When Redress Scotland receives a completed application the team and panel members carefully follow our process for managing applications. The Redress Scotland team completes initial checks. Each completed application is then allocated to a sitting panel. Each sitting panel has 2 or 3 panel members, depending on the type of applications. Panel members are appointed by Scottish Ministers for their skills and experience and are responsible for making decisions on completed applications.

Each completed application is sent to the allocated sitting panel. Panel members then review all the information before they meet together. When the sitting panel takes place, the Chair makes sure the process of assessing the application and reaching a decision is carefully and thoughtfully managed. Once a decision is made, the panel members also agree and write a decision letter to the applicant. This decision letter is then returned to the Scottish Government.

As noted on page 3 and the chart on page 4, Redress Scotland have been receiving higher numbers of applications each month since February 2023. The number of applications continues to be higher than the capacity of our current panel members. We are prioritising applications from those with terminal illnesses (Priority 1) and applicants aged 68 or over (Priority 2), to try to ensure we still process these as quickly as possible. In addition, as of 19 April 2024, we have increased the priority of any Review of Redress application that was not already either Priority 1 or 2, with an aim of completing these within 45 working days. All other first applications are classed as Priority 3.

The chart below shows average wait times for Priority 1 and 2 applications compared to those for Priority 3 applications as we received applications at a rate that was greater than our capacity to make decisions. The average wait times for Priority 1 and 2 applications have remained fairly consistent through the year, however from July 2023 on, the average wait times for Priority 3 applications have increased. The impact of the change for Priority 3 Review applications was not immediate, as we already had a number of these in the queue when this change was made. However, we are starting to see the impact of this in June 2024.

The chart also shows the maximum and minimum wait times for applications seen in each month. Those applications with longer wait times are likely to have required further information for panels to reach their decisions.

With wait times for applicants increasing over the past year, we have been focussing on providing the best possible information about how long people will have to wait. We now write to every applicant when we receive their application to confirm that we have received their application and to give them an indicative timescale of how long we think it will take for us to allocate their application to a panel. If circumstances change, we will also contact applicants affected by this change to let them know how this affects their wait time. We also regularly review and update information about this which is available on our website (Timescales at Redress Scotland). Timescales vary according to the type of application.

In addition to these timescales, we also have targets for how long it should take for us to make decisions for each type of application. These targets are intended to stretch and challenge us, and at present we are only meeting them in relation to some types of application (Application priorities update).

We have taken steps to improve how long it takes to make decisions on applications, successfully recruiting new panel members, who joined us in January 2024. These new panel members have now completed their training and started making decisions on panels during June 2024, although we do not expect to see the full impact of this change for a few months. Redress Scotland currently has 38 panel members, 4 below our planned resource level.

\ Note: This time does not include any time when the application is returned to the Scottish Government for quality related issues or to the applicant for clarifying questions (see section 6).*

6. Does Redress Scotland ask for more information from applicants?

When the panel members meet to assess and make a decision on a completed application, they must decide if they have enough information. If the panel members have assessed they do not have enough information, then they may ask for more. The panel members write a letter to the applicant to ask for more information and this is sent to the Scottish Government.

From when the scheme opened to the end of June 2024, Redress Scotland's panel members have asked 211 redress applicants for more information (with just under a tenth of these having been asked for more information on more than one occasion). For financial year 2024-25 to date, panel members have asked for more information in around 10% of all panel decisions<sup>1</sup> (28 times over a 3-month period) similar to the proportion of around 10% seen in 2023-24<sup>1</sup> (100 times over the year). Panels asked for more information in just under 13% of all redress applications completed up to the end of June 2024<sup>2</sup>.

An applicant can decide how long they need to answer a letter asking for more information. The average length of time applicants took to respond was around 20 working days (for responses received during the period from when the scheme opened to the end of June 2024).

<sup>1</sup> Excludes decisions made by reconvened panels to make decisions on applications where the panel had previously asked for more information.

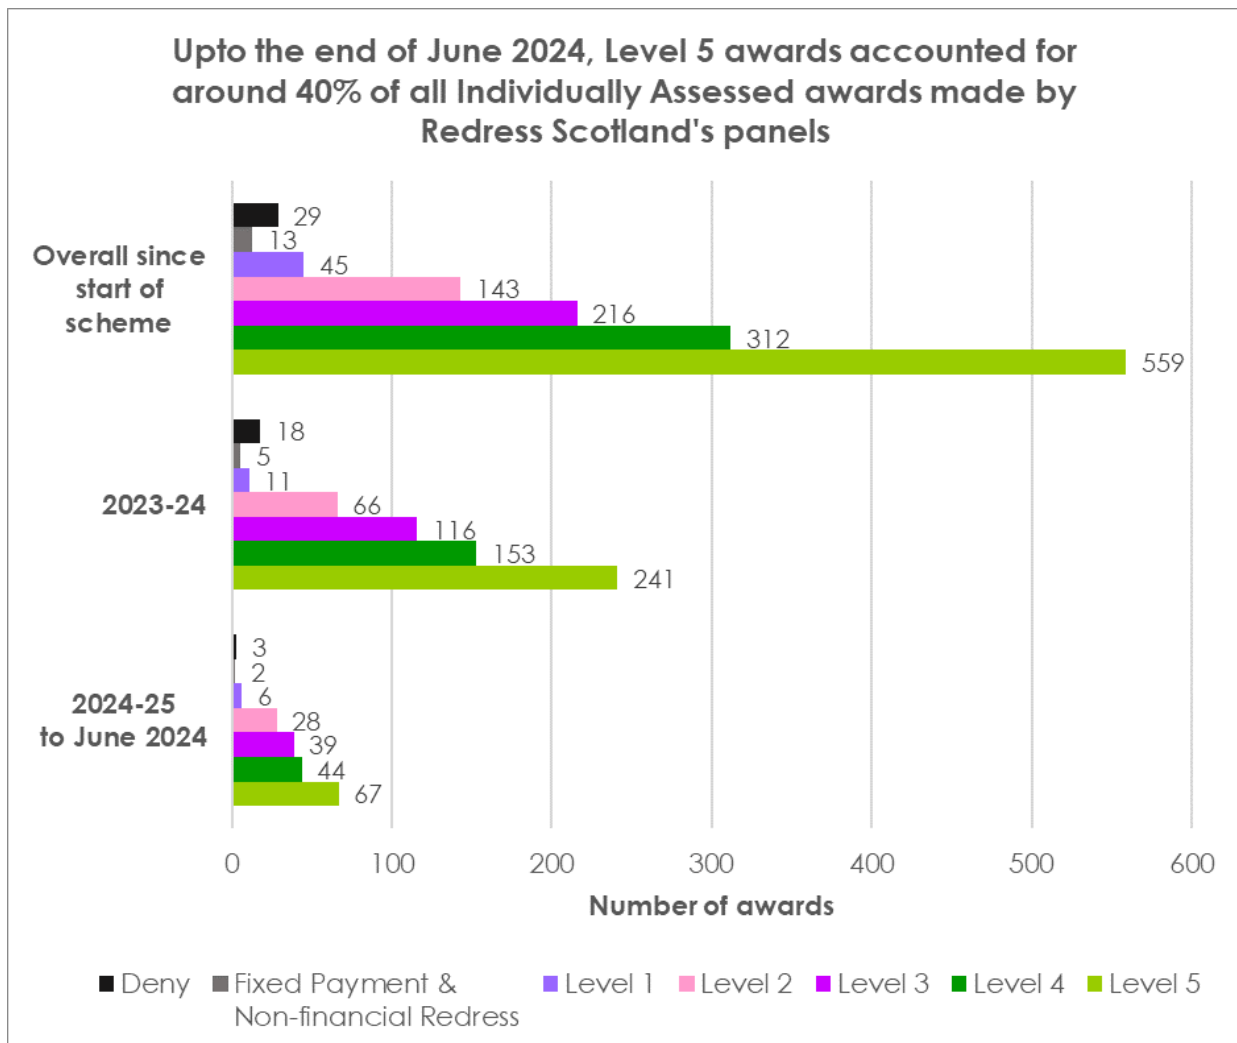

<sup>2</sup> Note: Requests for more information have been asked on more than one occasion for some applications.

7. What levels of redress awards have been made?

Applications for individually assessed redress awards have five different levels as well as the Fixed Payment level.

Award level	Number
Fixed Payment	£10,000
Level 1	£20,000
Level 2	£40,000
Level 3	£60,000
Level 4	£80,000
Level 5	£100,000

Redress Scotland panel members use the assessment framework, which is part of the statutory guidance for the scheme, to decide what is the most appropriate level for an individually assessed application. Since the scheme opened, redress awards have been made for every level. In total, 1,288 awards have been made for Individually Assessed applications while 29 have resulted in decisions to deny redress. The following diagram shows how many Individually Assessed awards have been made at each level, from when the scheme opened to the end of June 2024, for the financial year 2023-24 and, for financial year 2024-25 up-to end June 2024.

Notes:

1. Fixed Payments awarded to applicants of Initially Assessed Payment applications are included here. These are awarded where the panel have determined that the application does not meet the evidential requirements for an Individually Assessed award but does qualify for a Fixed Payment award.
2. The total Individually Assessed awards shown include 47 Reviews of Redress, 9 Nominated Beneficiary applications and 3 Reconsiderations. In addition to the Individually Assessed awards, there have been 551 fixed level awards made to applicants for Fixed Payments, Next of Kin, and some Reviews of Redress applications.

8. What information will Redress Scotland share in future?

Redress Scotland is continuously working to build the trust and confidence of survivors. We believe that it is important to share information so that all survivors can find out about what we are doing and how well we are doing it. We also welcome feedback and suggestions. If you have views on what information we should share, please get in touch by emailing us enquiries@redress.scot

9. Revisions History

We strive to make our reporting as accurate as possible, however, errors do occasionally happen. When we find these or users highlight any to us, we will revise our reports as soon as possible and include a summary of what has changed in the table below.
